On the subject of regulating retail forex, plan and simple.....STAY OUT OF TRYING TO RUN MY PERSONAL LIFE!!!!!!! I am an adult and know how to handle my finances. We don't need the government to think it should stick it's nose into every part of our life. I trade retail forex on the side and have a full time job. I have taken the time to learn how to use a small account and trade it how I want to. I only use 50:1 leverage and if you reduce it anymore the chance of making enough money to make it worth while will take more money than I can come up with to fund my account. What you are doing will actually make the small trader loose more money because they will put money in the account that they can't afford to in order to get enough in there where a trade generates any kind of profit at all. Doing this will take the small trader out of the market and that's not fair to the small retail trader. Quit treating the small guy like some kind of idiot that you don't want playing in the sand box with the big boys. Stay out of our lives and do what the government is supposed to do!!!!!! I am totally against this regulation!!!!!!
